Summary: Lila has been rehomed and is now spayed. Congratulations!

UPDATE 6/10/07

Lila has found her forever home with Jason (Nobby) and family. Thanks to everyone involved, this lovely lady has her future secure.

Just to recap little bit about Lila

She came to me just over 2 months ago as one of the rescues from Norfolk

I can still remember the three of us Me Jo and Jackie W in a big transit van in a torrential rain driving to no man's land and bringing back with us 4 of the Corsos in need

It was so hard to choose who to take and who to leave and it was predominantly my choice for Lila to come home with me and I am glad I did although I can't stop thinking about the ones we left behind

Just to remind us of Lila back then

She came to me very shy and very scared could not go anywhere near her and she would not come to me Could not walk on the lead and would poo her self every time you tried to touch her It took a lot of love and patience but I did promise her that one day she will enjoy big hugs and kisses and believe it or not she finally does

It took her a while to start trusting me but she did and from that point on she has improved greatly She will now come when I call her take food from my hand and let me stroke her She enjoys gentle hugs and kisses and likes to sit on the sun just enjoying the fresh air She will follow me around the place but will go her own way if she wants to She will now walk in to the house but is still unsure about it

She can walk nicely on the lead but gets nervous with too many people around

Not a big fan of traveling in the car and yes she does suffer from travel sickness

She is very funny in her own ways and does this silly jump when she is happy or excited she also lays down with her front legs crossed over.

There are lots of things about her which will make you just fall in love with her.

She is looking for a very special forever home and will need to be rehomed by someone with lots of patience and some experience as she still needs lots of attention socialising and just getting used to things she has never had the opportunity to experience before

On a more practical note she has been wormed de-flea'd has had her 1st vaccination and is booked for her 2nd vaccination and spaying in 2 weeks time

Anyone interested in this girl please get in touch but please be aware I will not give her up without a fight!

Lila today

I don't know who she is winking at
